

HOTSPOTS

Employees at some of the most sought-after resorts in the Maldives share their global travel hotspots.

Total relaxation

"After a good exercise session, whether in the gym or on the bike, I like to laze on a beanbag at Kurumba's beach. Reading a good book followed by a relaxing swim in the lagoon is perfect. I think flying also offers a chance to unwind. It's a good chance to catch up on emails, do a bit of work without the phone or internet, and then settle down to watch a few movies."

Great food

"I love fresh, healthy ingredients, and cuisine that is not overly complicated. It's hard to beat the food from Italy, where the products are typically from within a 50km radius and the style of cooking respects each constituent part of the meal. I also love visiting Italian markets and meeting farmers who are so passionate about their cheese, seafood, oils and other products. When you have a little background to the ingredients and how much love is put into them, it certainly brings a simple dish to life."

Inspiring scenery

"There is nowhere quite as dramatic as North Queensland in Australia. You can go from the harsh outback into a tropical rainforest in a matter of kilometres. I also love it for the fact it's the place where the rainforest meets the Great Barrier Reef."

Bucket list

"I do love travelling and riding my bike through Italy, in particular Sardinia. However, the next destination on my bucket list is Girona in Spain. I've made some new friends there, who are professional cyclists, and I'm really looking forward to visiting them and taking in the local culture, sights and sounds. On the relaxation side of things, I'm interested to experience the food and the colourful atmosphere, although I'm also looking forward to doing some cycling too."
